Other activities will include police demonstrations, fire safety, automotive safety, games, and “Dan Dan the Choo Choo Man”. Hot dogs, chips and beverages will be served until supplies last. Officer Metter Rice is organizing the event for Auburn Hills and estimates that more than 3,000 people attended in 2015.

Our goal is to create an upbeat atmosphere to share the message that crime prevention is everyone’s responsibility: our residents, business owners and community organizations, as well as our police and fire,” explains Chief Doreen Olko, “We want to provide helpful information on how to create a safe community to live, learn, work and play.”*
